REENTRY SIMULATION

Successful Reentry back into society is a difficult, complex, and unpredictable process. The individuals being released from incarceration have different needs, resources, and histories, and therefore different life paths. "Successful Reentry" is not something that happens automatically upon release from prison but is something which has a greater chance of occurring if planned for.

Please join us to participate in a unique experience in which you will get a snapshot into the perspectives of the returning citizens who are entering the community after release from prison. Get a firsthand look at the obstacles and barriers these individuals face when coming home and gain a perspective to better help these individuals plan to succeed.
